Beck Won't Show Financial Records

Challenges Right Of Committee to 'Judge Activities'

WASHINGTON (UP) — Teamsters Boss Dave Beck defiantly refused today to give the Senate Rackets Committee his personal financial records or answer questions about his financial dealings with the giant union he heads.

The portly Beck told the committee he refused to give up his records because doing so would "very definitely" tend to incriminate him. When the committee subpenaed them, he still refused.

Beck entered the jammed, floodlighted Senate hearing room 15 minutes early, smiling composedly. Committee Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark) began the proceedings with a charge that Beck "may have misappropriated" $320,000 of union money.

Beck's response was to challenge the committee's authority to judge "criminal practices or activities." He said he was under threat of income tax prosecution and so would not testify about his finances.

Under sharp chiding by McClellan he persisted in his refusal.

Refuses Papers

Raising his naturally high-pitched voice, the rotund boss of the nation's biggest union said at different times when asked for his papers:

"I am not prepared to release them" (repeated three times).

"I must decline to do so."

He invoked not merely the Fifth Amendment's protection against self - incrimination but also the Fourth's against search and seizure. McClellan bluntly asked Beck if he believed answering the committee's questions might incriminate him.

"Yes, I believe very definitely so," Beck replied.

McClellan lost no time in making it clear the committee believes Beck took money from the union and that the money "was neither a gift nor a loan to h[illegible]"

McClellan said the committee also found evidence of "loose and irresponsible handling of union funds" which gave it grave concern.

"It is most disturbing to have information that the head of the largest union in the country may have misappropriated over 320,000."

Reads Short Letter

Beck had challenged the committee's authority in a short prepared letter which he read. It said the committee's actions were "a usurpation of executive and judicial prerogatives not bestowed upon the Congress, the Senate or this committee."

When McClellan asked whether Beck was challenging the committee's right to investigate, the burly union leader replied:

"Yes, I do challenge the jurisdiction."

"The chair overrules the challenge," McClellan said. In a legal statement supporting his view, McClellan than referred to congres-

BIG SNOW — The snow drifts — like everything else in Texas — are big as these motorists discover while sharing one shovel at a motel on Highway 66 near Amarillo. Darryl Peterson (right) rests atop his car while Soloman X. Wallace (left) and Mark Baehm take turns digging out. Nine feet of snow slowed the latter pair's takeoff for Los Angeles. The worst spring blizzard in many years howled eastward while many midwestern communities were still isolated.

Bill to Fight Burning Coal Refuse Banks

HARRISBURG (UP)—A batch of legislation affecting coal mining was introduced in the General Assembly Monday including a proposal to appropriate $3-million to combat burning coal mine refuse banks.

Rep. Joseph G. Wargo (D-Lackawanna) specified in the House bill that the money should be given to the Mines and Mineral Industries Department.

Other House mining legislation included:

—$3-million for the sealing, dewatering and flushing and extinguishing of fires in abandoned coal mines.

—$680,000 to the Coal Research Board and include methods of mining, preparing, transporting and marketing of bituminous and anthracite coal and their by-products in its scope of activities.

Most District Legislators Vote No on Changes

Most district legislators voted against Senate Republican amendments to the three per cent sales tax Monday when the House approved the levy and sent it to Gov. George M. Leader by a 124-77 vote.

The House previously approved the sales tax 140-60 when it originated in the chamber.

Both legislators from the Third District — H. J. Maxwell, of Monessen, and Charles J. Mills, of Greensburg — opposed the amendments.

Originally Mills and Maxwell opposed the sales tax when it was first brought to a vote in a "tax package" on Feb. 21 of last year. On March 6, however, they voted in favor of the measure after the Republican-controlled Senate defeated a compromise tax program.

Other district legislators who cast "no" votes yesterday include:

A. V. Capano, of Donora; Nicholas Kornick, Uniontown; James E. Lovett, Trafford; Anthony J. Petrosky, Slickville; E. Gadd Snider, Uniontown; Pat Trusio, Uniontown; Robert Wheeler, Jr., Fairchance; J. Blatch Cummins, Washington; Michael R. Flyn, Washington; and C. O. Williams, Brownsville.

All of those legislators are Democrats.

Cavalcante Pulls Out as Candidate On GOP Ticket

Uniontown Attorney Anthony Cavalcante has withdrawn as a Republican candidate for nomination for judge of Fayette County Orpans Court but will continue to seek the Democratic nomination.

Seeking nominations on both and Republican and Democratic tickets are President Judge Ross S. Matthews, of Orphans Court, and President Judge W. Russell Carr, of Common Pleas Court.

Judge Carr is being opposed in the May 21 primary by another Democrat, District Attorney Joseph E. Kovach.

James A. Reilly and Cavalcante are Judge Matthews' opponents on the Democratic slate. County Treasurer Joseph Matuschak withdrew last Saturday as a Democratic candidate for Orphans Court.

Other withdrawals in the county yesterday included Andre Leonti, Brownsville council; H. B. Harvey, Dunbar Township tax collector; Michael Metrosky, Washington Township school director, and W. E. Guesman and John E. Johnson, Redstone Township supervisors.

Drawings for positions on the ballot will be held Friday in the offices of the Fayette County Commissioners.

Midwest Digging Out From Spring Blizzard

By UNITED PRESS

The remnants of a four-day snowstorm swept into the East today, while in the West, rescue crews worked around the clock to free travelers and entire communities still isolated by the paralyzing fury of the blizzard.

Forecasters said the storm was largely spent, although it still packed enough wallop to dump two to five inches of snow in northern Illinois and Indiana, central and southern Michigan and southern Wisconsin during the night and today.

A United Press tally since the spring storm started Friday night showed at least 32 persons dead in weather caused mishaps in nine states. The toll included nine killed in Illinois, six in Texas, five in Oklahoma, three each in Kansas, Nebraska and Indiana, and one each in New Mexico, Iowa and Ohio.

Drifts 30-Feet Deep

The giant blizzard, described as the worst in history in some western states, buried parts of the Southwest under 30-foot drifts and more than two feet of drought-easing snow in the Nebraska and Iowa corn country.

An estimated 7,500 travelers were stranded by the storm, but most of them were free or out of danger today.

Weary rescue workers broke through huge drifts Monday night to reach the last two of six passenger trains stalled by the blizzard. School buses carried 256 persons from the snow - bound Union Pacific "City of St. Louis" to Winona, Kan.

Another crew pushed through to the Rock Island's "Golden State Limited," trapped near Liberal, Kan., with 225 passengers. A doctor had been flown in earlier to

Olympic Star, Czech Fiancee Want Privacy

LONDON (UP)—U.S. Olympic star Harold Connolly said today he and his Czech fiancee are "terribly unhappy" on the eve of their East-West wedding because "the whole world seems to want to eavesdrop on us."

"We just wanted a quiet, simple wedding," Connolly said by telephone from the Czech capital. "Instead we're getting headlines and telephone calls from all over the place and all kinds of personal questions."

"We never wanted headlines or publicity," the star hammer thrower said. "We just want each other, all by ourselves."

Wednesday the 26-year-old Olympic champion from Boston will marry Czechoslovakia's Olympic discus titleholder Olga Fikotova—not once but three times.

There will be the civil ceremony required by Czech law, a Roman Catholic ceremony because Connolly is Catholic, and a Protestant ceremony in Olga's own church.

The Protestant ceremony raised the problem of Catholic regulations opposing any rite outside the Catholic church. Catholics married in non-Catholic religious ceremonies are automatically excommunicated.

"I have taken all that into consideration and I'll take care of myself," Connolly said. "This is my own problem. It is not for the whole world to decide or for newspapers to write about."

Plan to Divide Carroll Precincts

A change in a Carroll Township voting district is expected to be granted by the Washington County courts in the near future.

The change would divide the Third Precinct of Carroll Township into two precincts. President Judge Roy I. Carson is expected to sign the order on his return from vacation.

The court has been informed that 1,400 voters are registered in the Third Precinct which is adjacent to Donora and includes Fisher Heights and other rapidly growing housing developments.

PUC Suspends Rate Increase For Gas Firm

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Public Utility Commission has suspended for six months an estimated $6,573,720 natural gas rate increase sought by the Manufacturers Light and Heat Co., Pittsburgh, for its 246,500 customers in 25 counties.

The commission set back the effective dates to Nov. 12-13 pending an investigation and said public hearings will be fixed as soon as possible.

The company filed the increase earlier this month to go into effect in two parts: $1,518,115 on May 12 and $4,955,605 on May 13. The first boost is designed to cover higher costs the company pays or will pay as a result of proposed increases filed by five major suppliers, while the second would offset higher costs of labor, pipelines and materials.

The company said the combined effects of the two boosts would raise charges about 12¼ per cent, putting $1.90 a month additional on bills of average heating customers and about 74 cents more for typical non-heating customers.

The proposals would affect customers in Adams, Allegheny, Armstrong, Beaver, Bedford, Butler, Chester, Clarion, Clearfield, Elk, Fayette, Franklin, Fulton, Greene, Indiana, Jefferson, Lawrence, McKean, Mercer, Somerset, Venango, Warren, Washington, Westmoreland and York counties.

Council to Meet

A regular meeting of Monessen City Council will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the City Building.

Part of Funds To Be Used for Redevelopment

A $350,000 state allocation was expected to be handed over to the City of Monessen this afternoon for a redevelopment project in the extreme northeastern part of the City.

Meeting with Commerce Secretary William B. Davlin in Harrisburg this afternoon to discuss the allocation were Mayor Hugo J. Parente; City Councilman David Victoria; Redevelopment Authority members A. Edward Wilen, chairman, Roderick Wiseman and Jim Destefano; Planning Commission member Thomas F. Preston and Chamber of Commerce officials Charles W. Hagerstrand, president, and George Cieply, executive secretary.

Davlin was expected to issue a formal order allocating the money to the Redevelopment Authority. The overall cost of the project is estimated at $2,100,000, with the City matching the State grant and the federal government putting up about $1,400,000.

Daniel Robers, chief of the Commerce Department's Housing and Redevelopment Division, said the City's costs will probably be spread out over a period of several years, in the form of streets and improvements.

To Develop 27 Acres

The Authority is seeking to develop 27 acres in the extreme northeastern section of Monessen, adjacent to the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad and the eastern City line.

The 27 - acre area is predominantly residential with a mixture of commercial and industrial establishments. Most of the existing structures are sub-standard and will be removed in the course of the redevelopment program, according to the Authority.

The redevelopment plan will probably incorporate some of the existing commercial and industrial structures, thereby eliminating the need for acquiring them.

According to the Authority's way of thinking, the street pattern in this area is inadequate to cope with a larger volume of traffic and the redevelopment will permit realignment of streets.

The Authority says two serious traffic bottlenecks now exist — one at the intersection of Manown street and East Schoonmaker avenue and the other at the intersection of Manown and Donner avenue.

There are about 78 residential dwellings containing 115 families, 35 commercial and 15 industrial structures in the area, considered one of the City's most blighted. Over 12 per cent of the residential dwellings are without running water.

Ambitious Plans

When the area is fully redeveloped, it will be used for commercial and light industrial purposes.

Davlin was informed by local representatives this afternoon that the Authority is also working on a project for the redevelopment of the western approach to the City from Route 906.

The Authority has ambitious plans for clearing all of the City's slums, neighborhood blight and changing the physical layout of congested areas.

Today's meeting with Davlin

New Kensington 'Litter' Law Is Hit in Court

Westmoreland County Judge Richard Laird today granted a temporary injunction restraining the city of New eKnsington from enforcing its controversial "anti-litter" ordinance.

The injunction was sought by the Tarentum Valley Daily News, which claims the measure was passed to prevent the paper from circulating in New Kensington.

The temporary injunction will stand for five days.

Judge Laird also ordered a hearing next Monday at 10 a. m. in Greensburg on a continuance of the injunction.

The "anti-litter ordinance" was adopted on March 8 by a 3-2 vote of New Kensington city council.

The issue touched off a bitter dispute between the New Kensington Daily Dispatch and the Tarentum Valley Daily News. Both papers carried front-page editorials criticizing the other.

The ordinance provides that violators be fined "not less than $50 or more than $200 for each offense together with costs of the proceedings." Under its provisions, New Kensington police are directed to arrest anyone who leaves a free sample of a newspaper on doorsteps more than four times a month.

The Tarentum Valley News had hinted that the ordinance was adopted to prevent the paper from "sampling" New Kensington in an effort to secure more circulation in the city.

Dinosaur Egg Is Found Under Steps of Church

HAMILTON, N.Y. (UP) — A 70 million - year - old dinosaur egg, stolen from Colgate University, was found Monday night under the steps of a local church.

Dr. Carl A. Kallgren, dean of the college, found the petrified egg after he received an anonymous telephone call which directed him to the church.

The light brown egg which is six inches long, two - and - a - half inches in diameter and has two or three prominent cracks on its shell, was stolen from a glass case in Lathrop Hall Friday night. It had been the object of a 13-state alarm.

Prof. David Trainer, curator of the Colgate University Museum, said the egg which is "scientifically priceless" had been insured for $10,000. The university purchased it in 1923 for $5,000 from the Central Asiatic Expedition.

He said the egg was one of three in existence which were discovered in the Gobi Desert. Tht other two eggs are in the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

Leader Says New Version of Sales Tax 'Smacks of Greed'

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader charged today the new version of the 3 per cent sales tax "begins to smack of greed and tax-dodging" and told the Republican-controlled Legislature the amended bill should be recalled and made "honorable and workable."

The measure was approved by the House and cleared the Legislature Monday night after it was amended by the Senate to give further tax exemptions to business and industry.

The governor said before a joint session of the House and Senate the constitutionality of the bill is questionable, it would be difficult to enforce, it gave "special privileges to certain favored interests," and was a "tax attorney's dream and a tax collector's nightmare."

He said the "favored interests" would be public utilities and shipbuilding and charged that under the amended version they would be given "special tax concessions denied to the public at large, the ordinary consumer, and all other industry."

"There is so much overeagerness to accommodate such special interests...that the exemptions rendered are much broader than even their strongest champions could have hoped to get," Leader said.

Leader pointed out that in his earlier communications with the lawmakers he advocated making the Pennsylvania tax system competitive with other states in an effort to attract new industry.

But he charged that the sales tax bill in its present form "goes beyond such a praiseworthy purpose.."

"It begins to smack of greed and tax-dodging," he said. "Nothing could be more harmful to the cause of genuine reform and improvement in our tax structure."

The governor emphasized that he was not challenging the sales tax as a basic means of raising revenue.

"That battle is over," he said. "I lost it; the Republican leadership in this General Assembly won it. But I would be failing most abjectly in my duties as chief executive of this Commonwealth if I did not urge you most strongly to make sure that, if we have a sales tax, it is a good one."

Leader denied any attempt to challenge the lawmakers' "prerogative" to choose the items that are to be taxed.

"But the General Assembly has no right...to enact an unworkable and unenforceable bill," he said.

The bill would continue the sales

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Pvt. Andrew Zrenchak, who was killed in action on Luzon 12 years ago today, March 26, 1945.
Duty called and he was there,
To do his best and take his share.
He little thought when leaving home
He would no more return,
That he in death so soon would sleep,
And leave us here to mourn.
We do not know what pain he bore,
We did not see him die,
We only know he passed away
And never said goodbye.
But God is good; He gave us strength
To bear our grievous cross;
He is the only one who knows
How bitter is our loss.

Plane's Engine Forces Landing

DETROIT (UP) —An American Airlines DC6 carrying 15 persons made an emergency landing at Willow Run Airport Monday night when the ship was thought to have a possible fire in one of its four engines.

The plane, en route from Chicago to New York, was given a quick inspection and no fire was found. It was pulled out of service, however for a more thorough investigation. The passengers were placed on another American flight to New York.

Man Is Shot Through Heart

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP) — Edward J. McDonald, 31, shot through the heart in a St. Patrick's Day argument, is "doing fine" and "talking all the time" hospital attendants said today.

McDonald, of Jeffersonville, Ind. underwent minor surgery at St. Mary and Elizabeth Hospital Monday for removal of a .38 caliber bullet which had lodged beneath the skin in his back after passing completely through the heart.

Surgeons described his case, in which the bullet hole in the heart was sealed by blood pouring into the fibrous sac surrounding the heart and putting pressure against it, as "very rare."

They Didn't Either

GLASGOW, Scotland (UP)—Police testified Monday that James Conway, 35, insisted "you haven't got enough on me" when they arrested him for running unclothed through the streets.

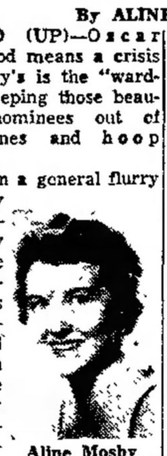
No Plunging Necklines For Oscar Ceremony

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Oscar time in Hollywood means a crisis a day, and today's is the "wardrobe worry"—keeping those beautiful actress nominees out of plunging necklines and hoop skirts.

Movietown is in a general flurry over Wednesday night's 29th annual Academy Awards. The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences even has assigned designer Edith Head, a six-time Oscar winner and double nominee this year herself, to ride herd on the movie stars' gowns.



Aline Mosby

Miss Head must see to it that the female nominees and presentors look presentable on the big televised event. One rule: No plunging necklines. NBC will have a wardrobe girl backstage with lace to fill in any wide open spaces.

"We must be sure the audience looks at the girl's face and not her anatomy," Miss Head explained today in her Paramount Studio office.

No More Hoop Skirts

"I also ask the stars not to wear costumes that look like a revival of 'Gone with the Wind'. Some actresses figure the bigger the dress, the better. One year a star wore a hoop skirt and she had to be helped up the steps to the stage!

"The stars must wear dresses that are navigable. They must be able to walk gracefully without cumbersome trains or too tight skirts. One year an actress slithered onto the stage in a tight dress and got a laugh. We can't have that happen again."

Deborah Kerr, Dorothy Malone, Mercedes McCambridge, Carroll Baker and other nominees also are warned by Miss Head not to bare their backs to the world. A covered back, the designer rules, looks better when the nominee is hurrying down the aisle of the Pantages Theater to collect her Oscar.

"The backward view is as important as the front view," she explained.

Last year a star click-clacked her way across the stage in backless pumps, sounding, as Miss Head says, "like the charge of the Light Brigade." Now the nominees are asked to wear shoes that say on their feet.

Black Prohibited Also

They're also told not to wear black or, with the men in black, the event would look like a morticians' convention. The gowns must be full length (a new rule this year) and minus glitter or two-tone colors that make them appear gaudy on television. A full-skirted gown in a pastel color is ideal, Miss Head says.

Some stars break the rules—and create a sensation.

One year the actresses dutifully showed up in fluffy pastels. But Marlene Dietrich, not even a nominee but a presentor, stole the show in a slinky black tight dress slit to the knee. Another year Bette Davis won the most notice in an "illegal" black sheath dress plus a strange turban to hide her head, shaved for movie role.

Blonde Attorney Loses on Quiz

NEW YORK (UP)—Mrs. Vivienne Nearing, the gal who knocked off quiz champ Charles Van Doren, was tumbled herself Monday night, by a lanky young medical research consultant.

Mrs. Nearing, a blonde attorney who works for Warner Bros., retired with $5500 and a grin.

"I only cried when I won," she said after the show. "There were no tears for my loss."

Mrs. Nearing, 30, was defeated on NBC-TV's "Twenty One" by Henry (Hank) Bloomgarden, a Cornell graduate who ran his stake on the show to $21,000 before evening's end. He did it by taking $10,500 from a $16,000 pile Mrs. Nearing had built and by winning another $10,500 from Dr. Henry Noble MacCracken, another contestant on the show.

Your Health—

Let Your Doctor Decide What Medicines Needed

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Doctors aren't always right, I'll admit that. But their batting average is extremely good. That's why I'd like to caution you about arguing with your physician about what kind of medicine is best for you.

Some persons — maybe you are one of them — insist that a doctor give them some specific drug even if he doesn't recommend it.

For example, they will insist that their physician give them an injection of penicillin every time they get a cold. Penicillin is a pretty potent antibiotic but, like anything else, you can develop sort of a tolerance for it.

Ordinarily, doctors prescribe this drug to prevent or treat secondary infections, not for the cold virus itself.

When you insist on getting this antibiotic each time you develop a cold, it simply amounts to a needless injection and a needless expense.

Moreover, the more penicillin you get, the more your body becomes accustomed to its reaction. Indiscriminate use of the drug eventually may make you immune to its benefits. Then when you really need it to check some serious infection, it won't do any good.

Penicillin can and does save lives. Some day it may save yours. So keep it on your side. Don't insist that it be used so often that you develop a resistance to it.

When your doctor advises it, however, it's another matter.

As I said, his batting average is pretty high. He knows when you need an antibiotic or any other specific type of drug. And he won't advise it unless he is confident it will do you some good.

Israel Is Against UN Troops

Ability to Defend Self Threatened

By UNITED PRESS

Israel is ready to demand the withdrawal of the United Nations Emergency Force from the Middle East because Israeli leaders feel its presence threatens Israel's ability to defend itself, Jerusalem dispatches indicated today.

The strong Israeli stand against the UNEF—and especially against stationing UNEF troops inside Israel — was viewed in Cairo as a major reason for U.N. Secretary Dag Hammarskjold's inability to reach a firm agreement with Egypt on the future of the UNEF.

Hammarskjold ended his talks with Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser shortly after midnight this morning and prepared to fly to New York to report to the major Suez Canal users on Nasser's plans for reopening the canal next month.

U. N. sources disclosed today that Hammarskjold had summoned his top financial adviser. Chairman John J. McCoy of the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York, to Cairo to discuss how to pay for clearing the canal—one of history's biggest salvage jobs.

Cost of the salvage project has been estimated at around $20 million. Egypt demands that Britain and France pay and has also asked for several millions from the U.N. for wrecked dredging equipment. McCloy, who arrives tonight or in the morning, was expected to help on a final solution to the problem.

Mission A Failure

All reports indicated Hammarskjold had failed to win any major concessions from Nasser—that the Egyptian president would reopen the canal only on his own terms—and that Israel was not budging in its stand against the UNEF.

Egypt's semi - official Mideast News Agency said Hammarskjld may confer with Israeli Ambassador Abba S. Eban when he returns to New York on Thursday. Hammarskjold failed to win any encouragement from Israel on his current mission and that nation made it clear it did not welcome a visit.

The slowly worsening situation came under discussion at Bermuda today between the British and Canadian Prime Ministers and foreign ministers.

Lester B. Pearson, Canadian minister of external affairs who first suggested the idea of sending the UNEF into the Middle East, joined Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and Canada's Louis St. Laurent in talks that may produce some new idea for resolving the tangle.

Jerusalem dispatches said Israeli officials had come to the conclusion the UNEF failed in its primary purpose — to prevent Egypt from returning to the Gaza Strip and reviving the threat of new Fedayeen (Arab commando) raids on Israeli border villages.

Motorists Stranded

The Rock Island refugees were evacuated by railroad snowplow to Meade, Kan., where all were reported in good condition.

Highway crews and melting snow combined to release thousands of motorists stranded in their cars. An estimated 1,500 persons had been trapped in the Texas Panhandle alone.

At Perryton, Tex., City Manager J. B. Wigham said road workers still have about 45 miles of highways to search and several cars are known to be stranded in the area. Helicopters will join the search today.

Officials in Texas and the Oklahoma Panhandle said it still was not known how many cars were stuck in the snow, or whether they would find more casualties.

Scores of little country towns were isolated by the storm, and took on the added burden of caring for traveler's caught by the blizzard. Farmers opened their doors to motorists stuck in the snow.

"The potential for Monessen is very great."

tax at 3 per cent permanently instead of dropping to 2 per cent on May 31 and the controversial stamp plan method of collection was eliminated. House Democrats raised objections to Senate amendments laying out exemptions for public utilities, manufacturers and shipbuilders. The Senate amendments cleared the House by a vote of 124-77.

House Minority Leader Albert S. Readinger (D-Berks) urged the chamber to "go slow" on passing the tax bill until the affect of the amendments could be fully understood. He asked the House to take "another month" before passing the legislation.

Former House Speaker Hiram G. Andrews (D-Cambria) said the sales tax should be referred to a joint House - Senate Conference Committee for authorative research.

"We should have a detailed report of what the tax will yield rather than an educated guess," Andrews said. "The GOP also should show us the amended bill will raise considerably more money than the present 3 per cent tax."

Defends Exemptions

House Majority Leader Albert W. Johnson (R-McKean) led the GOP floor battle. He said the tax would return $20-million monthly because the exemptions would have no effect on yields. Johnson said the sales tax has not been collected in the first place in the areas exempted by the amendments.

Johnson reviewed the amendments individually, contending the GOP was trying to correct "major abuses" read into the tax by the administration.

"Lets give business a square deal in Pennsylvania...give them a tax equality and stop the mass exodus of business firms from the state," Johnson said.

Although several Democrats urged the sales tax be submitted to a joint study committee, no formal motion was offered. After about two hours debate, the legislation cleared the chamber virtually along party lines.

sional power to legislate in behalf of the nation's general welfare and its power to regulate commerce.

"Certain," McClellan said, "if we (Congress) have the authority to legislate in any area, a dully constituted committee has the power to investigate..." the chairman said.

Committee Counsel Robert F. Kennedy commented that four members of the special group were selected from the Senate Labor Committee which has jurisdiction over labor law. Sen. Irving M. Ives (R-NY) commented that the Senate also had directed the special committee to look into law "violations."

Shouts At Beck

Ives, possessed of one of the Senate's loudest voices, used it to accuse Beck of "challenging the Senate itself, challenging Congress itself."

"And you're challenging, moreover, the whole government of the United States," Ives declared.

Beck blared "I certainly do not" when asked if he intended to resign as Teamsters president.

Senator Kennedy asked Beck if he intended to quit under a provision of the recently - adopted AFL-CIO code of ethics which says that union officials who invoke the Fifth Amendment "have no right to continue to hold office."

Beck said he did not sign the code. Kennedy asked if he was bound by it.

"I certainly am not," said Beck loudly. "I am only bound by the law of the international union."

Beck said the AFL-CIO code is "a violation of the rights of citizens . . . I am totally opposed to it." He said the rights of citizens "transcend" the rights of a union or anything else.

McClellan asked if Beck, as head of the nation's biggest union, felt his right to use the Fifth Amendment, to avoid giving the committee information on misuse of union funds, "transcends the obligation you have to the laboring men of this country who belong to your union."

"There are legal rights involved in this question," said Beck, conferring with the attorney beside him, Arthur D. Condon of Washington. "I am taking the 100 per cent legal advice of my personal attorney, Sen. Duff, and the others."

Duff Not Present

Former Sen. James H. Duff (R-Pa) recently became Beck's personal lawyer but did not sit with him today. Condon is a member of Duff's firm.

"No doubt they feel it would be better for you to take the Fifth Amendment," McClellan said dryly.

The chairman said the Fifth Amendment is a privilege, not a duty.

Under persistent questioning, Beck said he would "comply 100 per cent" with any procedures approved by the Teamsters union under the union constitution. But "I will not waive any constitutional rights," on advice of his attorney, Duff.

Joint Controls for Pollution Proposed

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader has asked the state Legislature to establish joint county-state controls on air pollution throughout Pennsylvania.

Guided Missiles for France Is Possibility

WASHINGTON (UP)—The administration is considering the possibility of making guided missiles available to France as well as Brtain sometime in the future, it was reported today.

However no definite decision has been reached and informed sources said the French so far have made no request. The White House said the question is not currently under study, but left the door open for possible action later.

The United States would retain control of any atomic warheads for such missiles. The President is forbidden under existing law to give A-weapons to a foreign power except in time of war, and apparently has no intention of asking Congress to change the law.

Hints "Subsequent Deployments"

The possibility of missiles for France came up at a White House meeting late Monday. President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles gave 20 key Republican and Democratic lawmakers a report on the recent "Big Two" meeting at Bermuda with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said afterward that "the project for the deployment of intermediate - range ballistic missiles" in Britain "is an initial project which itself is yet to be fully developed both from the standpoint of weapons themselves and the precise conditions for deployment."

"This is the logical place of beginning," he said. "Subsequent deployments will, of course, remain to be considered, but are not under active consideration at the present time."

No Secret Agreements

Dulles had an opportunity to expanddon this subject and other aspects of the Bermuda Conference at a news conference scheduled for this morning.

Most congressional leaders who attended Monday's session appeared satisfied with what they were told, especially with the President's assurances he made no secret agreements with Macmillan.

A United Press dispatch from Bermuda said Mr. Eisenhower and Macmillan reached a number of "unrevealed decisions" in their four days of talks. The decisions, attributed to informed sources, said the two leaders had agreed on long-range steps to be taken in event of possible Soviet expansion in the Middle East or failure of current peace moves in that area.

The sources said the undisclosed decisions concerned principally Anglo - American security, and all were recorded as is customary.

Southern Bloc in House For More Budget Cuts

Plans to Slash More 'Fat' Out Of Appropriations

WASHINGTON (UP)—Southern Democrats in the Housev owed today to grasp the economy axe more firmly in their own hands.

Chairman Howard W. Smith (D-Va.) of the House Rules Committee said the southern bloc is not satisfied with the budget cuts made so far this year.

He said that from now on the southerners will look for additional economies in appropriation bills after they emerge from committee.

The southerners planned to start this afternoon with the administration's labor and welfare appropriation bill.

The House Appropriations Committee already has cut the $2 9 billion bill $118 million—3.9 per cent.

But Smith said the bill still has "plenty of fat" in it. About 20 southerners met in his office Monday to frame amendments to cut it.

Other congressional news:

Housing: Key members of a House Banking subcommittee planned to draft a "veterans preference" plan as part of an omnibus housing bill. The plan would make it easier — and possibly cheaper — for veterans to buy FHA-insured housing. The House passed a bill making it easier for veterans in rural areas to get direct loans from the government. But the House refused to put federal funds into GI housing loans for big city veterans.

Loan: The Senate has passed and sent to the House legislation to permit Britain to postpone any seven annual payments on its. U.S. debt between now and 2001. The bill resulted from a British request to postpone an interest payment due last year to help ease the strain caused by closing of the Suez Canal.

Labor: Senators prepared to introduce bills to eliminate the "twilight zone" between federal and state authority in labor disputes. However, an AFL-CIO spokesman said the "twilight zone" could be eliminated by the National Labor Relations Board.

Farm: Chairman Allen J. Ellender of the Senate Agriculture Committee warned the proposed corn acreage increase bill would "kill the soil bank." Ellender's committee approved the bill—favored by the administration—over Ellender's opposition.

County Chapter to Elect Officers

Election of officers will take place at the meeting of the Westmoreland County Chapter of the Pennsylvania Association for Retarded Children Monday at 7:30 p m. at the William Penn Beneficial Association club in Greensburg.

All those having retarded children and organizations interested in the Chapter are invited to attend. A social hour will follow.

The club is located at 129 North Pennsylvania avenue.

Centerville Man Pulls Out, but Is Returning

Mike Packrall, the stormy Washington County political figure withdrew all three of his petitions for nomination for office yesterday, but promised he would be back.

Packrall blasted what he called "so-called political bosses" in the Democratic party and said he would circulate petitions to run for County Controller on a nonpartisan ticket in the Municipal Election this November.

The Centerville businessman had filed not only for nomination for Controller but for Recorder and Sheriff.

Packrall said he had been approached in the week between the final date for filing and the final date for withdrawal by "certain political leaders" and offered support in exchange for "certain commitments."

The commitments I had to make were against my wishes and good government, so I refused their support . . ." Packrall said.

"Now I am ready to circulate my petitions for County Controller on the Non-Partisan ticket This petition is to put my name on the ballot for County Controller of Washington County at the Municipal Election to be held Nov. 5, 1957."

Packrall explained that the petitions could be signed by Republicans and Democrats alike and said he would solicit signatures and support from both parties.

Although the deadline for filing for such a nominating certificate is ahead of the May 21 primary, a successful effort by Packrall would mean that his name would go on the November ballot representing the "Non-Partisan" party or whatever he chooses to call it.

The required number of signatures is higher than on the ordinary nominating petition, probably five per cent of the total vote cast in the county at the last general election which would be probably 4,000 names.

Italo-American Society Installs Officers Here

Cosimo Todaro was installed as president of the Italo-American Workmen's Education Association at a meeting Sunday at the Ninth street hall.

Others installed were Alfreddo Petaccia, vice president; James Suppa, financial secretary; Pete Annonio, treasurer; Domenico Cicchitto, Italian secretary; Alfredo Ambrose, English secretary and Benny Zugaro, dues collector.

Trustees are: Alfredo Zugaro, Adamo Palanzo, Vingenzo Amendola and Patsy Panepinto. On the political committee are Salvatore Mastracci, Joe Spina and Julio Ostetrico. Sam Runfola was installed guard.

Past President Edward Furio was herald for the installation. Fred Mosco presided and annual reports were given following the opening ritual.

The new president outlined his plans for 1957 and brief talks were given by Edward Furio, D. Cocciolone, Ben Zugaro and other members.

Refreshments were served by a committee including Santo DiBiaso, chairman, Ben Zugaro, Salvatore Mastracci and Peter Annonio.

New Constitution Survey Requested

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Legislature today received an administration request for a $175,000 survey of the state Constitution with a view to bringing the 83-year-old basic law up to date.

Legislation introduced in the Senate would establish a temporary Commission on Constitutional Revision, consisting of 15 persons appointed by the governor and serving without pay, to "study the Constitution...in the light of contemporary conditions and anticipated problems and the needs of the people."

The group would report to the governor and the General Assembly at the opening of the next regular session in January, 1959.

Seven Withdrawals In Washington County

Six Democrats and one Republican yesterday withdrew as candidates for Washington County offices.

The single Republican withdrawal was Elizabeth Frantz, of Charleroi, who left incumbent Charles F. Connors as the lone candidate for Jury Commissioner. This withdrawal means Republicans will have a clear field in the May 21 primary.

This isn't the case for the Democrats, however

Mike Packrall withdrew from the Sheriff race leaving incumbent Grant Furlong to face C. O. (Lefty) Williams. F. Raymond Pohle, James Leo Ellsworth, Mike Nackoul, James Bongiorni and Nestor W. Barli. That's seven.

Packrall also withdrew from the Controller race leaving incumbent Peter Elish to face Coroner L. C. Gray, James O. Roupe and Boyd L. Wilson. That's four.

Packrall also withdrew from the Recorder of Deeds contest leaving incumbent John D. Woodward to face Russell E. Reese, George Linck, Walter Nakoneczny and Raymond J. Curley. That's five. Two others, F. Raymond Pohle and George W. Snyder, withdrew from this contest.

Kenneth Blake withdrew from the Democratic Jury Commissioner contest leaving incumbent Raymong Yeager to meet Inez Donaldson, Thomas J. Brennan, George W. Vitteck, Sr., Mae Cooper, John M. Crockett, and George F. White. That's seven.

The Republican candidates are sheriff, William C. Masters, Peters Township for controller, Harold B. Balmer, Cross Creek, for recorder, and Connors for jury commissioner.

GIANT OXYGEN TANKS FOR LOCAL PLANT — These huge oxygen tanks, which measure eight feet in diameter and 40-feet long, are to be installed by the Linde Air Products Co. on a 1-3 acre of ground belonging to the Monessen plant of Pittsburgh Steel Co. at 11th street and Donner avenue. The tanks will be erected vertically. Linde will supply high-purity oxygen at a rate of 99½ tons per day for maintenance work, such as welding, and 95 per cent pure oxygen for open hearth combustion at a rate of 125 tons per day. Linde leased the portion of ground and will be in charge of operating the oxygen output.

Three Top 'Railroad' Lines Preparing for Big Battle

NEW YORK (UP) — A brassknuckled competitive battle is shaping up this year among three major "railroads."

Lined up against each other are Lionel Corp., A. C. Gilbert Co., and Revell Inc.

These three companies have two things in common — they all make model electric trains and they all hope to capture a bigger share of the market in 1957.

Toy electric trains have fascinated men and boys alike for half a century. At Christmas, there are more miles of track running through living rooms than real railroads have laid around the world.

Nobody has any idea of how many sets actually are owned by "railroaders" from one end of the globe to the other. The only thing that is certain is that the number is growing at a clip that has the manufacturers smiling.

The manufacturers this year have their big sales guns leveled at all age brackets in the nation's booming population.

Trains For Girls

Lionel, the biggest and oldest of the major train makers, has come out with a set of trains featuring pastel - colored cars. It's strictly for the girls.

Buoying the electric train industry's confidence this year is the prediction that 1957 will be the biggest toy year in history.

The toy manufacturers of America predicted that Americans would shell out more than $1 5 billion for toys and games of all kind in 1957 — easily a new all-time high.

Right now, industry attention is centered on the miniature train sets, featuring scale model cars only a few inches long. They're making a comeback.

Lionel President Lawrence Cowen said his company presently does not market the miniature sets, although it once did. He said the market for these trains has definite limitations.

"For one thing," he added, "small trains are difficult for children to operate. Another is that there are few operating accessories to go with them, which hurts their salability."

Sold On Lilliputians

However, both A. C. Gilbert, which makes "American Flyer" trains, and Revell are sold on the Lilliputians.

A spokesman for A. C. Gilbert said the smaller model sets are designed specifically for the hobbyist. "They are not toys," he emphasized.

Henry Blankfort, an official of Revell Inc., said his firm invaded the electric train field for the first time last year with a pigmy line of trains. Revell also makes plastic trains. Revell also makes plastic and cars.

"The demand was so terrific we had to stop taking orders. We look for an even better year in 1957."

"The first successfully operated electric train was developed by Joshua Lionel Cowen, founder of Lionel, around 1900. By 1915 his sales totaled $8,000, growing to $300,000 in 1913 and more than $2[illegible] million last year."

Would Operate State Highways With Commission

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Legislature today considered a proposal to replace the state Highways Department with an independent administrative commission composed of three members appointed for six year terms.

A bill introduced by Republican Sens. George N. Wade (Cumberland) and James S. Berger (Potter) would transfer all of the powers and duties of the department, now under Highways Secretary Joseph J. Lawler, to a "Pennsylvania Highways Commission." All of the department's personnel, records and funds would also be transferred.

The commissioners would receive a $13,000 annual salary, with the chairman to receive $2,000 additional.

J & L Steel Reports Record Year in 1956

Highest sales, highest wages and second highest earnings in the history of Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. are reported for 1956 by Admiral Ben Moreell, chairman of the board, in the annual report for 1956. Reports are being distributed to J&L's more than 46,000 shareholders.

At the same time it was announced that the J&L operating rate for the first quarter of 1957 will be 102 per cent of capacity and prospects for capacity operations during the second quarter are excellent.

J&L's current backlog of unfilled orders is larger now than it was at the start of 1957, and larger than at this same time last year. Incoming orders exceeded shipments in both January and February, 1957.

Sales in 1956 reached a new high of $742,642,000, up seven per cent from the previous record year of 1955 which showed $696,538,000 in sales. Net income for 1956 was $45,122,000 or $6.63 on each share of common stock compared with $50,104,000 or $7.39 a share in 1955.

These near-record earnings for 1956 were achieved despite the 34-day steel industry strike and substantial non-recurring charges against income resulting from J&L's current large capital expenditure program to achieve cost reductions and expansion.

Total wages and salaries paid by J&L in 1956 set a new record high of $236,696,000. The comparable 1955 figure was $221,136,000.

Cash dividends on each share of J&L common stock were increased to $2.50 in 1956 from $2.25 in 1955. In addition, a 3 per cent stock dividend was paid in December, 1956.

In his report to J&L shareholders, Admiral Moreell said "We look for a satisfactory rate of operations for the calendar year 1957. While there are some evidences of slowing demand in certain areas of our business, the over-all prospects are quite encouraging, and a record production year is within the realm of probability."

Avery C. Adams, former Pittsburgh Steel Co. president, is now president of J&L.

Pechan, Senate majority whip told the Senate Monday the cost of maintaining the youths at institutions run by the Welfare Department is "exhorbitant." He said the cost per inmate at the Camp Hill Industrial School, run by the Bureau of Corrections in the Justice Department, is $2.40 compared to $11 at the Pennsylvania Training School at Morganza, which is administered by the Welfare Department.

In addition, Pechan said there are about 20 escapes a week from the Welfare-operated institutions.

The institutions which would be affected by the bill are:

Unions Need More Democracy

THE SENATE'S investigation of labor racketeering is causing a good deal of soul-searching among the more conscientious union leaders. And some of them seem to be genuinely and sincerely concerned to discover means by which some of the excesses which are turning up in the investigation can be cleaned up or prevented.

Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers and a man with whose ideas on many subjects we can seldom agree, is addressing himself to this subject with his customary zest. And with characteristic candor he declares that President Dave Beck's use of Teamster Union funds "to further his own personal investments is highly improper, inexcusable and morally indefensible". And with that we couldn't agree more.

Mr. Reuther goes on to say that, for the good of the whole labor movement, steps should be taken by the unions themselves to police the conduct of their officers. And again we agree.

For his own union, which is one of the largest and most powerful, Mr. Reuther is proposing to establish a "public review board" composed of prominent and respected citizens who are not members of the UAW. And he would have this group act as a "watchdog" on behalf of the public over the UAW's affairs.

It is doubtful, however, whether Mr. Reuther has thought this idea through. It seems more likely that he feels some necessity for getting into print promptly with a constructive proposal of some sort. And we question whether this is a sound one from the standpoint of either the union or the public.

* * *

IF UNIONS need "watchdogs" (and not many people would deny now that they do), it strikes us that these ought to be provided, not as a matter of voluntary chance, but as a matter of law and as a function of government. When Wall Street went sour some years back, the nation did not leave it to Samuel Insull to appoint somebody to watch himself. It put Insull in jail and went on from there to adopt regulatory laws — such as that creating the Securities & Exchange Commission — to prevent men like Insull from victimizing the investing public again.

This is what the unions need — some definite legal machinery for making sure that they and their leaders do not abuse the vast power which they now possess.

* * *

UNIONS need something else, in our opinion, which only their members can provide. And that is some old-fashioned, grass roots democracy.

Too many unions today, including large ones as well as small ones, are run from the top with their members having too little to say about their affairs. In many cases the leaders are virtual dictators able to perpetuate themselves in office. Their staffs are not truly representative of the membership but are composed of errand boys whose jobs depend on staying in the good graces of the leaders, not upon service rendered to the membership.

Too many local unions have too little to say about such all-important matters as collective bargaining with employers. With little of importance to do, the officers spend much of their time playing internal politics. And one of the effects of this is a total lack of interest in union affairs by the majority of members, most of whom never bother to attend a meeting.

It is this last condition, in our opinion, that is mainly responsible for the aberrations of leadership which are now on the nation's front pages. The union movement is never going to be in healthy condition until the rank-and-file of the membership is in active control. We know what happens in government when the masses of the people lose interest and put their political affairs entirely in the hands of professionals. The professionals then proceed to run the government for their own benefit, and that is precisely what has happened in the Teamsters Union.

Useless Citizens

IT WOULD be hard to think of a more useless individual in a democracy than a citizen who doesn't vote — unless it would be a citizen who isn't even registered to vote.

Such citizens should ask themselves this simple question: What would happen to this country if everybody did as I do and refused to participate in elections?

The question, of course, answers itself. Representative government would disappear overnight, and its place would quickly be filled by some other form. And that would be the end of personal freedom as we know it.

Tomorrow is registration day in Monessen the last opportunity to register locally before the primary elections on May 21. If you're one of those useless individuals who can't vote because they aren't registered, you can do something about it tomorrow at the City Hall.

Merry-Go-Round—

Beck Has Been Under Tax Probe

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — It has been known for some time that Dave Beck, potent, harassed, and harried head of the Teamsters, was under income-tax scrutiny. But it has not been known how the investigation started. It can now be revealed that it was actually ordered by President Harry Truman and has been continued by Internal Revenue since.

Mr. Pearson

Income-tax troubles are considered to be the reason why the big Teamster boss has been so frantically selling off big wads of real estate and why he also went before the union's executive council to sell his home and his furniture to the union, even though the union had already paid for various repairs on the home, and thus paid for part of it twice.

The skein of Beck's farflung business operations is difficult to unravel. The tax agents have been working on it for some time and find that he has real estate all the way from Washington, D. C., suburbs to the west coast.

However, here is a quick look at part of his financial empire:

Early in Beck's career his family got into the beer business. Not content with organizing the beer-wagon drivers, Beck organized the brewery workers. They had their own union, but he moved in and made them part of the Teamsters. Then Beck's nephew, Norman Gessert, became president of Sunset Distributors which handles Rainier beer in North Seattle. Beck himself, with his wife, has owned about 1,000 shares of Rainier stock.

Budweiser and Beck, Jr.

Dave Beck, Jr., is also president of K and L Beverage Co., which now handles Budweiser. For a long time, no eastern beer was allowed to enter Seattle. The Teamsters wouldn't permit it. It was not distributed. But now Dave Beck's son has the distributorship for Anheuser-Busch of St. Louis.

Dave Beck's wife, Dorothy, also holds stock in K and L Distributors which sells not only beer, but whisky and wine as far north as Alaska. So the Beck family is right in the beer business from bar back to brewery.

The Teamsters' constitution, by the way, requires that its international president shall "devote all his time to the service of the Brotherhood."

Another part of Beck's financial empire which the tax agents have taken a look at is his real estate and his finance agency. The latter, the Northwest Securities Corp., is an automobile finance agency which does about $2,000,000 worth of business annually on new and used cars, plus auto insurance.

Beck has borrowed part of the money for his business ventures from his own union, as he himself said, to the tune of $300,000 to $400,000 without interest. He has also borrowed from the Occidental Life Insurance Co. of California, which handles the health and welfare funds for 300,000 Teamsters in the 12 western states. It has been glad to lend Beck money at around 3½ per cent, even at a time when veterans were paying 4 per cent.

With this financial backing, Beck has acquired a large interest in the swankiest apartment house in Seattle, Grosvenor House. It's a 356-unit building located across from Teamster headquarters worth about $3,500,000. A group of local businessmen built it, made Beck chairman of the board, and he is now probably the chief owner.

Beck also organized the D and B Investment Corp. and owns part of the LBG Realty Corp. Through them he has acquired apartment houses, parking lots, beer-distributing buildings etc., all around Seattle.

Family Sales

Some of these were sold in a hurry when he was reported to be anxious to raise tax money.

They were sold in many cases to his family or to family corporations at very nice prices. For instance, Beck owned a piece of property on 14th avenue in Seattle which was being used by Sunset Distributors, which is owned by his nephew, Norman Gessert, by Mrs Beck's niece, and by a Teamster official, Albert Irvine. Beck had purchased the building for $45,000 in 1951 and sold it in 1955 to his family beer-distributor company for $100,000. He doubled his money in four years.

Beck also sold two lots on East Marginal Way to another of his family companies. A family firm, the K and L Distributing Co., had been occupying the lots, and Beck sold them to the Cosmopolitan Co., of which Dave Beck, Jr., is president, with his nephew Gessert and a Teamster official, Simon Wampold, officers of the company.

Thus it was hard to say where Beck's interest began and left off. At any rate he made a profit of $134,000 on the lots, having held them eight years.

. . . but Don't Go Near the Water'

From Washington—

The Disability Question

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

President Eisenhower intends to present to Congress a detailed plan for a statute and, probably, a constitutional amendment which would repair the dangerous gap in the Constitution on presidential disability.

Mr. Eisenhower's proposal will go to the Capitol at this session unless it appears that it would hold up urgent legislation.

Mr. Drummond

It shouldn't have that effect. The President's concern is not to press for hasty action, but, rather, to give Congress and the country all the time needed to examine, debate and determine what should be done.

The reason something needs to be done comes from this sentence in the Constitution: "In case of . . the (President's) inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve upon the Vice President. . ."

The unanswered questions are: (1) Who shall decide when a President cannot discharge his duties? (2) How shall it be decided? (3) In the event of disability short of death, does the Constitution mean that the "said office" of President, or only the powers and duties of the office shall devolve upon the Vice President?

Ike's Preferences

Mr. Eisenhower has reached his own decision on two of these questions. He would like to see an act of Congress which would establish:

That the Vice President shall become "acting President" taking over the "powers and duties" not the office, in the event of Presidential disability.

That a President may at his own initiative delegate his powers to the Vice President in the event of disability, and recover them when he determines he can resume.

These two provisions would admittedly not meet all emergencies but they would meet most of them.

The great gain would be that it would make certain that a Vice President could not seize the "office" of President even while temporarily discharging its powers. This would reduce, perhaps enturely overcome, the disinclination of a disabled President to free himself of his duties lest he never get them back.

This is no theoretical problem. After being seriously wounded by an assassin President Garfield was unable to perform his duties for two and a half months, but his staff was unwilling to allow him to delegate them to Vice President Arthur for fear the latter would decide to retain them.

During the last 17 months of his second term President Wilson was not a whole man and numerous White House decisions were taken by those whom few officials knew. Later, when Wilson learned that Secretary Lansing had suggested a cabinet meeting to consider whether Vice President Marshall should take over temporarily, Wilson fired Lansing for "disloyalty."

If a President knew that he could recover his powers if he once delegated them it would help remove the temptation to cover up disability.

There remains the other unresolved question. Who should determine Presidential disability when a President makes no move to do so himself?

It has been suggested that it be decided by the cabinet, by the Supreme Court, by the Vice President and by a congressional commission.

All of these proposals and others are now before Mr. Eisenhower for his study. He has not reached a final conclusion, but my understanding is that he favors something very near to what the Washington Editor of the Saturday Evening Post, Beverly Smith, outlined in his article last week.

Commission Proposed

Mr. Smith proposes a Presidential Disability Commission of nine members to comprise the Chief Justice and the two senior members of the Supreme Court, the two highest-ranking cabinet members, the Majority and Minority Leaders of the Senate, the Speaker and Minority Leader of the House.

Its authority would be to decide on its own motion by a two-thirds vote in writing when a President was "disabled" and when he was "recovered."

The reason a solution like this appeals to Mr. Eisenhower is that it enables all branches of the government to share in a decision which vitally affects the whole nation.

Ten Years Ago—

Wednesday, March 26, 1947

A city-wide park improvement program involving an expenditure of $25,000 and the installation of sanitary and storm sewers at a cost of another $25,000 were authorized today by City Council. Both programs were approved by the voters at the primary election last Spring when they approved a bond issue including $25,000 for each project.

A post-season snow and wind storm played havoc with transportation, forced industrial power plants down for hours here and ripped roofs from houses in Greene County. Two loaded coal barges capsized in the Monongahela River at an estimated loss of over $10,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Baron, of McKeesport visited Sunday with local relatives and friends.

Congress on Spot in Making Budget Cuts

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UP) — While Congress flails away at President Eisenhower's budget, the treasury will wait until mid-summer of 1957 to estimate — and until July of 1958 to report — what was accomplished.

Mr. Lahr

To achieve real budget cuts, much more is involved than congressional votes reducing appropriation bills below administration requests.

When Mr. Eisenhower submitted his budget in January the $71.8 billion total was only an estimate of what the government will spend in the fiscal year starting next July 1. At the same time he asked Congress to vote $73.3 billion in actual new appropriations.

Carryover Money

Congressional attention is focused on the new appropriations bills. But some of the money spent in the new fiscal year will come from funds Congress voted in previous years; some will come from the new appropriations; and some of the money in the new appropriation bills will be spent in later years.

Some of the whittling done by Congress on the appropriation bills will save money, some will not. When the lawmakers add up the reductions they have voted, they include some "cuts" which do not save the treasury a dime.

For example the House has passed one appropriation bill trimming almost $150 million from the budget request for veterans' pensions and compensation. This is not a budget cut, but an expression of hope that the administration overestimated what it will need.

A Flexible Law

How much money is spent for this purpose is fixed by a law which Congress has shown no signs of changing. If the administration estimate turns out to be right, Congress will dutifully restore whatever is needed in a "supplemental" appropriation.

Many in Congress agree that Mr. Eisenhower's budget is too big. But there is much less agreement about where and how much to cut. Some think the defense budget is too big and some think it should be bigger. Others have the same conflicting views about reclamation and power projects.

As of now it seems a sure thing that a majority in Congress will vote to trim the administration's $4.4 billion foreign aid program. But Congress will not know how much its action will reduce actual spending in the coming fiscal year.

The Lighter Side—

Fate Will Catch 'Amos 'N' Andy' Team Yet

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UP) — You can go on away and spin your Pelvis records now, sonny. This is a column for old people.

Old enough, that is, to remember the sad day when the comedy team of Sam 'n' Henry made its fatal mistake. They changed their name to Amos 'n' Andy.

Some of us had the vision right then and there to predict that these guys were through. Their brand of humor was undimmed, their comic situations just as droll, their ridicule of the everyday foibles of mankind just as much of a tonic to the radio listener.

But the new team name had no oomph. They were established in the entertainment world as Sam n' Henry. They even — and this was the supreme compliment — had had a candy bar named after them. Now they were moving to a new station and changing the team name to a namby-pamby thing that nobody would find attractive enough to bother flipping a dial for. I, for one was fairly certain their professional goose was cooked.

That was in 1928, the year they changed names. Last week, the team entered its 30th consecutive year of broadcasting under the name of Amos 'n' Andy, and I see no reason to change my prediction. Some day they're going to fold up. It probably won't be in my lifetime, or yours, but just mark my words.

Good as they are, they can't go on forever, breaking all the longevity rules of show business and nature. When — and, forsooth, if — they ever fold up, remember what I told you. They never should have changed names. It was the beginning of the end.

But what a beginning. It is pretty certain that to this day they don't realize the power they had in their heyday. When Bill Hay, their announcer, finished his spiel and flipped his quick, introductory "heah-they-ah," the ear-straining silence was national.

Some Memory!

I had occasion in recent years to call Andy Charles Correll from the solid comfort of a barber's chair for some trivial query about the wedding skit in the 1930's with which they allegedly pulled the vastest listening audience in history. "Boy, you got some memory," said Correll.

Some memory! Is it remarkable to recall the event that shook the lives of millions? It was apparent the man didn't begin to realize he had helped produce one of the greatest theatrical moments.

To the Editor:

The Westmoreland Public Health Association wishes to express its heartfelt thanks to you, and your readers for support of the 50th annual Christmas Seal Sale.

You have given us a mandate to continue the fight until tuberculosis is under control in this community. The Association pledges that it will do everything in its power to protect your homes from tuberculosis.

The fight has been a long one, but great progress has already been made. The older ones among you will remember the hopeless attitude about TB that prevailed half a century ago. Today there is hope — real hope for the defeat of TB. Medical science has had great success in preventing death from TB, less in preventing spread of the disease from the sick to the well. In this part of the job, every citizen must co-operate.

In thanking you for your Christmas Seal contribution, may we also ask for your cooperation throughout the year in the TB control programs you have helped pay for. Have your chest X-rayed. Read the literature on TB put out by the Westmoreland Public Health Association, listen to its speakers. Urge your legislators to provide the necessary funds for public TB control facilities.

The total of Christmas Seal contributions received to date is $41,311.24. Of this total, 16 per cent goes to the Pennsylvania Tuberculosis & Health Society in Philadelphia for services to the local community, out of which six per cent in turn goes to the National Tuberculosis Association and comes back to us in services and in the results of the nationwide research program.

ON THE BALL

By ALLEN KLINE

Brownsville, Redstone Near Jointure

That long-rumored jointure of Brownsville and Redstone may develop sooner than anyone suspects. Reportedly, school officials in the area are making real progress along these lines. If and when the jointure is completed, the school will be one of the largest in the state . . . Incidentally the proposed combine will also be another blow to the Big Six Football Conference . . . George Kuvinka, capable commissioner of the Mon Valley Baseball League for the past several seasons, has reaffirmed his earlier decision to give up those duties. "I want to spend more time with my family this summer," explains the hard-working Kuvinka.

* * *

Dave Columbia, former Brownsville High infielder, has signed with the Chicago Cubs as a pitching prospect. Dave had a previous fling in organized ball in the New York Giant farm system, failing as an infielder. Last summer he tried his hand at pitching in sandlot ball and impressed Chicago scouts enough to win a contract. . . . Dave, you may recall, is the fellow who was the subject of a big picture spread in Life Magazine when he signed his earlier New York pact a couple of years back . . . The Monessen Ozarks have two sets of jerseys on hand to make sure all teams in the current basketball tournament are properly uniformed.

24 Pirate Games Booked for TV

KDKA-TV has already booked 24 Pittsburgh Pirate games for weekend telecasts this season. The first tussle will be picked up from Brooklyn on Saturday, April 20 . . . Don Hennon, Pitt's brilliant basketballer, figures to rewrite all of the school's scoring records before earning his degree. The all-time mark is held by Bob Lazor, who tallied 1,175 points in three seasons. Hennon scored no less than 573 points as a sophomore. That means he needs only 605 more in his junior and senior years to establish a new record! . . . Spring football drills at Penn State will conclude with an intrasquad game on Saturday, April 13.

* * *

The PIAA championship basketball game at Philadelphia's Penn Palestra will be televised on an eight-station network, but district viewers probably won't see it. No Pittsburgh stations are scheduled to carry the tussle . . . The Charleroi Eagles will throw a testimonial dinner for the hometown basketballers on April 2 at 6:30 p. m. . . . Speaking of Charleroi, the Cougars should win Section 5-A honors again next season. They have Ollie Payne and Jim Chacko back. Those two boys are truly outstanding basketballers. It's hard to imagine any valley team coming up with any better.

Latrobe Coach After Greensburg Job

Ralph Forquer, current Latrobe High basketball coach, has officially applied for the vacancy at Greensburg created by the recent resignation of Harold Smith. Since assuming the floor duties at Latrobe in 1950, Forquer has coached his Wildcats to 115 victories as against 63 losses . . . By the way, more than 25 applicants are after the Greensburg job. Interviews are planned soon and a coach will probably be named sometime next month . . . Jack Clark, Charleroi businessman and president of Nemacolin Country Club, fired his second hole-in-one the other day when he canned a tee shot on the par three 168 yard No. 12 at Nemacolin. He authored his first ace on No. 9 back in 1954.

Fraley Picks Yankees, Reds to Win Pennants

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)—Pull up a chair, peel yourself a grape because we're fresh out of oranges, and take it from Fearless Fraley that it's gonna be the New York Yankees and the Cincinnati Reds in the World Series this year.

From here the pennant races shape up this way:

American League

1. The New York Yankees: If they lose this one, there should be a congressional investigation. The only questions are how many homers Mickey Mantle will hit (55) and how many games Art Ditmar will win (21).

2. Detroit Tigers: In the race 'til the head of the stretch. Then watch Whitey Ford and Co. go by.

3. Cleveland Indians: Still loaded with pitchers to throw it up there. Still nobody to get it when it goes out there.

4. Chicago White Sox: Go, go too slow, slow.

5. Boston Red Sox: Proving once again that money will buy anything but complete poverty and a pennant.

6. Baltimore Orioes: Any higher would be a real Oriole borealis.

7. Kansas City Athletics: Still in Missouri.

8. Washington Senators: The old, old story: First in war, first in peace—and last in the American League.

National League

1. Cincinnati Reds: More muscles than a weight lifters' convention but that may be the stumbling blocks. The pitching figures to improve but the blasters have to blast on schedule.

2. Brooklyn Dodgers: The beards grow longer and longer and sooner, if not later, the thumbs won't plug the dyke any more.

3. Milwaukee Braves: If they ever get mad, look out. But there is still no fire in the ashes.

4. St. Louis Cardinals: The gang is out of gas with nobody to fill the tank.

5. Philadelphia Phillies: Gee whiz, kids?

6. Pittsburgh Pirates: Gee, kids!

7. New York Giants: San Francisco wouldn't want 'em.

8. Chicago Cubs: Lucky to finish eighth.

And, Oh yes, the Yankees will win the Series, four games to two. Anyone for football?

Change in Basketball Rules

Free Throw Bonus Is Modified

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP) —A modified free throw rule used this season by the Big Ten conference was the major rule change adopted by the National Basketball Committee in its two-day meeting here.

Announcement of the new rules concluded the committee's session Monday.

The new six-foul rule means the one-and-one free throw rule is not in effect for the first six fouls by each team in each half. Only after the first six fouls, does a player get a "bonus" shot if he scores on his first attempt.

In another effort to speed up the game, officials were ordered to warn the "responsible" team during stalls to make "a reasonable effort to get action" or be subject to a technical foul.

The "responsible" team, the rule states, is the team behind in the score. If the score is tied, the team on defense is the "responsible" one.

Another Revision

Another revision calls for the ball being thrown into play from under either goal, but if the ball goes behind the backboard on the throw-in it will be regarded as out of bounds. It was written to prevent players from throwing in over the backboard to tall players for "dunk" shots.

The committee also made a new rule that players on offense cannot touch the ball on the rim of the basket or directly above it unless the player carried the ball there. It is designed to eliminate tip-ins by taller players.

On double fouls, the committee ruled, neither team will get a free throw and a jump ball will be held instead. Use of a yellow ball for televised games was authorized by the committee along with numerous changes and editorial revisions in the rules book.

Bucs Still Year Away As Pennant Contenders

By LEO H. PETERSEN

FORT MYERS, Fla., (UP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates finally are starting to roll, but Manager Bobby Bragan believes it will be at least another year before they will become pennant contenders.

However, Bragan who finally led the Pirates out of the cellar last year to finish seventh in his freshman year as manager, feels the club has a good chance to finish in the first division.

"I don't see any teams beating out Brooklyn, Milwaukee or Cincinnati," he said. "But I think we can beat out St. Louis for fourth place."

Although it lacks power, Bragan classifies his outfield of Bill Virdon in center, Lee Walls in left and Roberto Clemente in right as one of the best in the league. However, he pointed out that the three of them hit only a total 28 home runs.

Stuart Questionable

Virdon batted .334 after the Pirates got him from the Cardinals and wound up with an average of .319, second only to Hank Aaron's .328. Clemente batted .311 while Walls, after a fast start tailed off and wound up with an average of .274.

There is a chance that gangling Dick Stuart, up from Lincoln where he hit 66 homers and drove in 158 runs, may break into the outfield if he continues hitting the long ball the way he has thus far. He lacks polish in the field, however, and will have to hit long, and often, to make up for it.

Behind his outfield, Bragan lists pitching as the next Pirate strong point. In Bob Friend, Ronnie Kline and Vern Law he figures he has three of the best starters in the league with Elroy Face among the best in the relief department. But Bragan is quick to agree that his staff may "lack depth."

Lacks Infield Speed

The infield will have big Dale Long at first, Bill Mazeroski at second, Dick Groat at short and Frank Thomas at third. The Pirate skipper complained that his infield, outside of Mazeroski, lacks speed.

As last spring, Bragan is high on the future prospects of catcher Danny Kravitz, who can hit the long ball. The rookie didn't hit or catch well at the start of last season, however, and he was shipped to Hollywood for further seasoning.

This year, he could become the No. 1 catcher with Jack Shepard retired. Battling him for the job are Hank Foiles, formerly with Cleveland, and Dick Rand, the ex-Cardinal.

Ten Mile Creek will get 1,400 rainbow trout and 600 brown trout at 1 p. m. March 27. The truck will be at Routes 18 and 221

Aunt Clara's Fork will be stocked with 1,530 rainbow trout and 570 brown trout at 1 p. m. March 28. Stocking will taked place near the Florence Post Office.

Moore to Defend Title in June

DETROIT (UP)—Ancient Archie Moore today was assured of keeping his light heavyweight crown until at least June 7 when he meets the winner of the Chuck Spieser-Tony Anthony bout here at Olympia Stadium.

Moore, weighing 210 pounds but promising the excess will be gone by June, signed for the title defense Monday — one week after the original deadline fixed by the National Boxing Assn. and the New York State Athletic Commission.

The boxing bodies had threatened Archie with loss of his crown if he didn't sign for a defense by March 18.

Spieser, No 1 contender, meets third-ranked Anthony at Olympia April 5

Field Trimmed for Semi-Finals on Wednesday Night

Five more teams bowed out of the sixth annual Ozarks Basketball Tournament last night during brisk action at the Monessen High gym.

In junior class games, the Brownsville Peppers topped Donora Lumber, 56-23; West Virginia Mounties bested Monessen Bus, 44-34; and Monessen Tracys took Donora Bills, 41-36.

Senior class action found the Monessen Ozarks winning a forfeit from McKeesport, Donora Last Chance swamping the Monessen Cro-Ams, 61-34; and New Brighton nipping the Monessen Cro-Ams, 44-35.

Those results set the stage for Wednesday's semi-final activity. In the junior class, Brownsville will meet the Monessen Tracys at 6 while the Monessen Links will tackle the West Virginia Mounties at 9.

Three Senior Tilts

In the senior division, three games are scheduled in order to reduce the double-elimination field to two teams.

The Wednesday card will pair the Monessen Ozarks against New Brighton at 7; Washington Intervals against Donora Last Chance at 8 and the Washington-Donora loser against the Monessen-New Brighton winner at 10.

One of the junior class favorites — Monessen Bus — bowed out of the tourney last night, yielding to the surprisingly tough West Virginia Mounties.

Dick DiBiaso paced Monessen with 11 points while Nick Serdich and Lou Kovacs had a smilar total for the Mounties.

The defending champion Monessen Tracys had to work all the way to trip the Donora Bills. Ron Gray led the winners with 11 tallies while Dee Galiffa was high for the losers with 11.

Brownsville Peppers coasted against Donora Lumber. Sam Canistra tossed in 10 points to lead the way as every boy on the squad hit the scoring column. For the losers, Don Sento had 14.

Donora Last Chance helped to knock the Monessen Cro-Ams out of the tourney without trouble. The Donorans paced by two high-scoring stars from Carnegie Tech, had absolutely no trouble after a tight first period.

Tech Stars

Charles Goetz and Al Frank, both of Tech, had 14 and 13 points, respectively, for the winners. Tony Crisi was high for the Cro-Ams with 14.

A little later in the evening, New Brighton belted the Cro-Ams, 44-35, to erase them for good.

The Ozarks won their game the easy way, taking a forfeit from McKeesport. It marked the first time in the six year history of the tournament that a team failed to show up for a scheduled game.

MHS Baseballers Open Exhibition Play Thurs.

Rebuilt Greyhounds to Tackle McKeesport at Ninth Street Park

Monessen High's exhibition baseball season will open Thursday when McKeesport's always strong Tigers visit Ninth Street Park.

Unhappily, Greyhound coach John Hayduk isn't exactly sure who will start for his side.

All of last year's Monessen nine was wiped out by graduation with the exception of Catcher Carl Crawley.

Thus Hayduk, starting his first season at the Greyhound helm, was left with a tremendous rebuilding job. And his task has been further complicated.

"It seems other school activities have taken the time of most of our boys," said Hayduk. "Crawley hasn't been to a single practice yet, devoting his time to volleyball. Other candidates have been practicing with the glee club. We don't expect to have our entire squad out until later this week."

Two Outfielders

Hayduk feels that he has at least uncoverrd two good-looking outfielders in Mike Kunsa and Jim Sepesky. Both are capable hitters and pretty fair fielders.

Moreover Richard DiBiaso looks like a good bet to win the second base spot.

From then on, though, it's mere speculation.

James Barker looks like a potential infielder and he'll probably play at either shortstop or third base.

Relies on Kaminski

Hayduk is hoping that John Kaminski develops as a catcher. If he does, Crawley will be moved to first base.

The pitching staff will have to rely mainly on a pair of juniors: Dan Barton and Myron Sepitko. Also in the picture is Kerestes.

The Greyhounds have another baseball exhibition scheduled with West Newton on April 4 before opening the Section 17 season on April 8 against Bellmar.

Umps to Meet Here on Friday

A reorganization meeting of the Mon Valley Umpires Association will be held Friday at 7:30 p. m. in the Monessen Ravens Club.

Secretary George Kuvinka said plans for the upcoming season will be discussed. He urged all members to attend.

Pirates Take on Cardinals Today

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates play the St. Louis Cardinals in an exhibition game here today.

The Pirates were rained out of Monday's scheduled game with the Philadelphia Phillies, adding to the worries of Manager Bobby Bragan who has a roster - cutting job and is running short on time.

Bragan was happy over one change he made, moving young Gene Freese to the outfield.

"I had just about given up on him as an infielder because I don't think he has the sure hands of a major leaguer," Bragan said of the 23-year-old from Wheeling, W. Va., native. "But he plays that outfield like a veteran. If he perks up his hitting, he can make this team."

Freese also was happy with his new assignment.

"First time I ever played the outfield," he said. "It's a lot easier than I ever imagined and I like it. It also relaxes me at the plate and this is a big opportunity for me."

Hawks Defeat Minneapolis in Marathon Game

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UP)—It will be the St. Louis Hawks against the Boston Celtics in the final round of the National Basketball Association playoffs, opening in Boston on Saturday.

The Hawks completed a 3-0 sweep of the Western Division finals Monday night when they beat the Minneapolis Lakers, 143 - 135, in a stormy, two - overtime tussle that ended in a protest by the Lakers. The Celtics previously completed a similar sweep in the east.

The Hawks, who won the first two games of the best-of-five western finals on their home court, were tied with the Lakers, 114-114, at the end of regulation time and 131-131 at the end of the first overtime. Then they outscored the Lakers, 12-4, in the second extra session.

The Lakers' protest stemmed from the closing minutes of regulation time. They were leading, 114-112, when the clock was set back from five seconds remaining to eight seconds remaining. They claimed this was an error and gave Bob Pettit of the Hawks a chance to drive in for the tying basket.

Pettit Top Scorer

Pettit was the Hawks' high scorer with 35 points, but individual game honors went to rookie Bob Leonard of the Lakers with 42.

League officials at the game disallowed the Lakers' protest.

Referee Norm Drucker had blown his whistle when the Lakers threw the ball in from out of bounds, but he was overruled by referee Arnold Heft. Heft ordered the clock turned back three seconds. When the Lakers threw the ball in again, Jack Mcmahon of the Hawks tied up Chuck Mencel of the Lakers. The Hawks got the ball and fed Pettit for the tying basket.

West Virginia Reinstates Players

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UP)—Three players who were dropped from the West Virginia University football squad last fall for breaking training regulations have been reinstated by Coach Art Lewis.

The players, who sat out all of the 1956 season, are center Phil Messinger, Clarksburg, W. Va.; end John Plybon, East Bank, W. Va., and quarterback Chuck Simpson, Charleston, W. Va. They joined the Mountaineers' in spring workouts Monday.

Lewis suspended the three players last fall for breaking curfew while the team was in pre-season training quarters at Jacksons Mill, W. Va.

Game Commission Notes . . .

Dog Owners Reminded Of Responsibility

The Game Commission reminds all dog owners they are responsible for keeping their pets tied, penned or under control at all times.

This is particularly important in spring and early summer when whole nests of tiny rabbits or of game bird eggs may otherwise be destroyed, and deer may be killed by dogs running free and following their natural instincts. Beyond the fact these acts are detrimental to wildlife populations, owners are held responsible for the depredations of their dogs.

On the matter of training dogs, it is unlawful for the owner of any dog or a dog under his control, to permit such dog to chase, pursue, or follow upon the track of any wild bird or wild animal, either day or night, between the first day of April and the thirty-first day of July next following.

An exception is made, during this closed period, when a sufficient number of hunters and farmers in a county petition for the right to hunt foxes. Even then the Game Commission stipulates a sixty-day no hunting period between April 1 and May 30, to protect wild game during the time most young are born or hatched.

However, field trials may be held between April 1 and April 30 following the securing of a field trial permit from the Game Commission Division office serving the area within which the trial is to be held. In such a meet, where dogs are permitted to work on liberated or native wild game, the directors and participants must use care to prevent the injury or killing of the game being pursued.

It is also lawful to hold field meets or trials for dogs with led game animals or drags at any time between the 16th day of April and the 19th day of August next following, after having secured the necessary permit.

Pet Porcupine . . .

This summer, visitors at the Hershey Zoo will see a male porcupine named Stinky who is said to prefer that people communicate with him in baby talk! Compared to his wild brethren he is an epicure of sorts. His favorite foods are bananas, apples, bread, lettuce, carrots, apple tree branches, and locust leaves.

Stinky was the property of Donald G. Day, a Susquehanna County Game Protector, until a short time ago. Writing the animal's biography, Day said, "His life began April 8th, 1955, when Stinky's mother was killed and I delivered him by Caesarean section. Since that time he has been entirely dependent on me and can be handled with complete impunity.

"Occasionally I would take him to a sportsmen's meeting or some public gathering, before which time it was necessary to remove the odor common to all porcupines. Then my wife and I would put him in the bath tub, where he would sit quite calmly and allow himself to be soaped down.

"Because he is tame Stinky's quills are always down. When frightened he doesn't erect his barbed quills to look like a pin cushion, as his brothers do. Even so, in picking him up it would be wise to lift him by the under side, not place the hands on the quill areas."

Recognized by Deer . .

"Last winter, after apple trees had been released from choking vegetation and forest thinnings had been made on 15 acres in the refuge on State Game Lands No. 51, eleven deer made the area their headquarters. They appreciated the fare so much they bedded down there and stayed in the area for days." So reports Game Protector Alex J. Ziros, Greene County.

Durelle Scores TKO Decision

NEW YORK (UP) —Yvon Durelle, the fishing tycoon who wears Canada's light-heavyweight crown, said today he would keep three Canadian fight-dates despite brow cuts suffered Monday night while stopping Clarence Floyd in their TV bout at St. Nicholas Arena.

Durelle, who makes money from his four fishing boats and claims he fights only "for fun and travel," scored a technical knockout over substitute Floyd of New York at 1:14 of the seventh round. A right to the chin had dropped Floyd earlier in the seventh. Floyd's left eye was swollen shut.

Yvon, weighing 175 pounds to Floyd's 167, suffered a slight cut on his left brow in the first round and a four-stitch gash in the fourth.

Reds to Protest A-Pool

ROME (UP) — Monday's signing of treaties for the European common market and atomic pool may touch off the sharpest Communist reaction since the North Atlantic Treaty of 1950, observers here predicted today.

The treaties, aimed at unification of Western Europe, also may seal the division of Germany, the observers said.

Unity in Western Europe is a block to the Communist policy of divide and conquer. Moreover, the treaties strengthen Europe's economic structure and make it less likely to wither away as called for by Marxist doctrine, and less susceptible to internal penetration.

The two treaties must be ratified by the parliaments of all six nations which signed them. It is in the national parliaments that Russia may choose to fight them, most sources here feel.

In France, the same coalition of Communists and rightists that guillotined the last "Europeanization" project, the European Defense Community, may combine to defeat the current treaties.

In Italy, Russia will have the largest Communist Party in Western Europe as a tool in the fight, and a non-Communist left wing worried about the possible effects of the common market on Italian labor.

But Italy's right wing parties, which will swing the balance of the vote, is expected to abstain or back the treaties to avoid playing into the Reds' hands.

Russia's trump card may lie in West Germany.

The Reds will try to convince West Germany that the common market means the end of any hope of reunion with East Germany.

U.S. Plans African Consulates

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States is stepping up its drive to swing Africa firmly into the free world camp with establishment of seven new consulates on the once dark continent.

State Department spokesman Lincoln White disclosed the plan Monday.

At the same time, Vice President Richard M. Nixon gave President Eisenhower an "informal report" on his 22-day African tour and visit to Rome.

Nixon gave the Chief Executive a country-by-country report on his personal conversations with leaders in the area. White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said it also would be "fair to say" he stressed the need for strengthening U.S. diplomatic and information activities in Africa.

Nixon plans to make a follow-up written report to the Chief Executive within the next week or 10 days. It presumably will be made public by the White House.

Establishment of the new consulates would be in addition to the State Department's previously-disclosed intention of establishing a new post of assistant secretary for African affairs.

The conference theme is "Christ for the World". Another highlight will be a display by the Young People of the church of projects indicative of the foreign mission fields.

Last night the church pastor, the Rev. James C. Puz, and a group of local people attended the opening banquet.

Tonight at 7:30 the Rev. James Kreutter, an eye witness to the changes taking place today in the ancient ways of Africa, will speak. He serves as a counselor for Christian groups and is under the sponsorship of the Conservative Baptist Foreign Missionary Society.

Mrs. Kreutter is a trained nurse and has been in charge of a dispensary, where the many ailments of the African are treated along with the spiritual care. The couple recently completed the first term of service in Africa.

Mr. Kreutter is a graduate of the Moody Bible Institute and Northern Baptist Seminary, both in Chicago. Mr. Kreutter was graduated from Northwestern Bible School of Minneapolis, Minn., and the Mounds - Midway School of Nursing in St. Paul. Tomorrow evening, the Rev. Jack Christiansen, missionary appointee to Pakistan, will be the guest speaker and on Thursday evening the speaker will be the Rev. Floyd McElveen, who works in the mission fields of Alaska.

The Friday evening speaker will be Miss Janet McIlwaine, R. N., newly appointed to the Belgian Congo. There will be no service on Saturday.

Two services will be held on Sunday. At 10:45 a. m. there will be a special speaker and again at 7:30 p. m. a missionary program will be presented. The morning speaker will be announced and the speaker for the evening will be Francella Woods, missionary to Formosa.

Mayor in Jail for Fixing Ticket

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UP) —Criminal Court Judge E. G. Newell sentenced resigned Mayor Rex Knoth of Riviera Beach, Fla., to 30 days in jail and a $500 fine Monday for using his official position to fix a friend's traffic ticket.

The judge said he was "reluctant" to pass such sentence because of Knoth's good civic work, but that "this is the type of case I think deserves punishment." Knoth resigned last month and pleaded guilty to the charge.
